Foundations of the metaphysics of morals pdf

deepblue4you/E+/Getty Images Moral values refer to a set of principles that govern individuals on how to rate right and wrong. People generally apply moral values to justify decisions, intentions, and actions, and also define a person's personal character. An individual with high moral values usually exhibits qualities of integrity, courage, respect, justice, honesty and compassion. The basic basis of an individual's character develops in the early childhood of a child and is partly shaped by the values and beliefs of parents. Educators and interaction also play an important role in the creation of moral values. Wikipedia states that development continues into adulthood. The company generally confuses the importance of ethics with moral values, reports Navran Associates. Ethics refers to a set of standards of conduct that a group of people to whom an individual is a member awaits, while moral values emphasize a person's moral code. Common ethics are sometimes contrary to moral values, especially in workplaces. A good example is the company's overtime requirement, in which an employee may feel that moral obligations to his family are sacrificed to fulfill his or her work duties. Ironically, people may lose their jobs because of low moral values. Tardiness, theft and bad work habits can be attributed to personal character. Stock Planets/E+/Getty Images Morality refers to a set of standards that allow people to live in cooperation in groups. This is what companies determine is right and acceptable.. Sometimes acting morally means that individuals must sacrifice their own short-term interests for the benefit of society. Individuals who go against these standards can be considered immoral. Morality is not fixed. What is considered acceptable in your culture may not be acceptable in another culture. Geographical areas, religion, family and life experiences affect morale. Scholars disagree on exactly how morality develops. However, there are several theories that have gained attention over the years: Freud morality and superego: Sigmund Freud suggested moral development occurred as a person's ability to put aside his selfish needs were replaced by the values of important socializing agents (such as the parents of man). Piaget's Theory of Moral Development: Jean Piaget focused on the socio-cognitive and socio-emotional perspective of development. Piaget theorized that moral development takes place over time, at certain stages, as children learn to adopt certain moral behaviors for their own good-rather than just adhere to moral codes because they don't want to get in trouble. B Skinner's behavioral theory: BB Skinner focused on the power of external forces that shaped an individual's development. For example, a child who receives praise for being kind can again treat someone with kindness out of a desire to get more positive attention in the future. Kohlberg moral reasoning: Lawrence proposed six phases of moral development that go beyond Piaget's theory. Through a series of questions, Kohlberg suggested that the adult phase of reasoning could be identified. Most morals aren't fixed. It usually changes and changes over time. Notions of whether certain behaviors are moral-like engaging in pre-marital sex, entering into same-sex relationships, and cannabis use have shifted over time. While most of the population once considered this behavior to be wrong, the vast majority of the population now consider these activities acceptable. In some areas, culture, and religion, using contraception is considered immoral; other parts of the world, some people consider contraception a moral thing to do because it reduces unplanned pregnancies, drives the population, and reduces the risk of sexually transmitted diseases. However, some morals seem to transcend around the world and over time. Scientists have found that these seven morals seem somewhat universal: Be a statebe FairDefer on authorityDefer your groupLove your familyProtected favorsProceedsThe names of the others Some scholars do not distinguish between morality and ethics. Both have to do with transport and evil. But some people believe that morality is personal, while ethics refers to community standards. For example, your community may not consider premarital sex a problem. But on a personal level, you can consider it immoral. By that definition, your morality would be contrary to the ethics of your community. Both laws and morality are designed to regulate behavior in the community so that people can live in harmony. Both have solid foundations in the concept that everyone should have autonomy and show respect for each other. Legal thinkers interpret the relationship between laws and morality differently. Some people say that laws and morality are independent. This means that laws cannot be ignored simply because they are morally indefensible. Others believe that law and morality are interdependent. These thinkers believe that laws that claim to regulate behavioral expectations must comply with moral norms. Therefore, all laws must ensure the welfare of the individual and be in place for the good of society. Something like adultery may be considered immoral by some, but it's legal in most states. In addition, it is illegal to drive slightly above the speed limit, but it is not necessarily considered immoral to do so. They may have a point where some people say breaking the law is a moral thing. Stealing food to feed a starving person, for example, can be illegal, but it can also be considered the right thing to do if it's the only way to prevent someone from suffering or dying. It can be helpful to spend some time thinking about the morality that drives your decisions about things like friendship, money, education, and family. Understanding what's really important to you can help you better understand yourself and make it easier to make decisions. Thank you for your feedback! Co your concerns? Before you start a foundation, you need find out whether the foundation will be private or public. You must define the purpose and objectives of the foundation. Finally, you must identify the following information: Names of all members of the Foundation and their specific roles and responsibilitiesThe names of the donor or donors who will provide the foundation's initial CapitalThe company to which the Foundation will use to keep afloatSmerina potential board members and officialsService and administrative obligations that you will perform, and the names of those to whom you plan to delegate the remaining responsibilitiesAmount of control that you will have over fundsRe relevant tax issues [source : Foundation Requirements] Once you have this information, follow these steps to establish a foundation [source: Start Foundation]: Check what state laws and requirements need to be followed. Create a board of directors. Define the function and responsibilities of each member of the Board of Directors. Draw up statutes and mission. Hire an experienced accountant and lawyer. Incorporate your foundations. Apply to the Tax Office for tax-exempt status. This will be the most time consuming step. You will need to provide the IRS with a statement of planned activities and an estimate of the three-year budget. Be sure to keep detailed records of the following: Keep records of all board meetings. Keep records of all income, expenses and donations. Keep records of all contracts and insurance contracts. Just imagine it now: Going out on a Friday night, your attitude is high and your makeup looks rad. You get to the bar (or house party, club, or especially luxury dinner) and really feel it. You will have a quick trip to the bathroom for a mirror check. Uh-oh. Your heart is dropping - your makeup has practically melted off your face. Your view is gloomy, and you're the one behind the camera for the rest of the night instead of posing front and center. As you ask, is it possible to avoid this dreaded problem? Below we have collected the 10 best night basics. Keep reading to find the right one for you. Becca Ever-Matte Shine Proof Foundation $42 Shop It's such a bummer when you find yourself spending time touching your makeup instead of hitting the dance floor. Nix shine, grease, and the inevitable boogie-induced sweat from your face with this creamy, matte foundation. It's super long-wearing (and won't melt), and it's been specially crafted for skin combination. Black Up Full Coverage Cream Foundation $44 Shop Full-coverage and super rich (it's actually whipped cream), this foundation is a dream for oily skin. It hides ev-verything-zits, dark spots, scars, and even that bout of redness caused by your favorite blended drink. Charlotte Tilbury Magic Foundation $44 Shop I feel like I could recommend this product day for the rest of the time (or, as long as the internet exists and I am allowed to post all my thoughts on it). Even though I have already declared my love for this little miracle in a bottle, it is remarkable that I say it again: It completely changed my (social) life. It offers full coverage (but a little less feel), has all the anti-aging benefits of moisturizing, and radiates like no other. Besides, it never moves. Clinique Beyond Perfecting Foundation + Concealer $30 Shop This is another formula with which I recently had a love affair. It's a foundation and concealer in one (score!), and is uber-moisturizing at the same time. While some might argue that it's a bit too full of coverage for the time of day, it's perfect for the night. It saves you precious time to prepare and is great for mingles. KVD Vegan Beauty Lock-It Tattoo Foundation $37 Shop This highly pigmented foundation provides such great coverage that it can even be used to cover tattoos. It has 24-hour wear and tear and is transfer resistant (so it doesn't get off on your partner's clothes), with natural polymers to absorb excess oil. It is creamy, comes in a wide range of shades and has a beautiful matte finish. Laura Mercier Silk Crème Oil Free Photo Edition Foundation $48 Shop Planning a Big Night Out? Of course, it will be a ton of images-this is the formula you need to love every single frame taken. Blends seamlessly with your skin thanks to a silk powder blend that absorbs oil, balances moisture and smoothes pores. MAC Full Coverage Foundation $36 Shop If liquid foundation is not your style, opt for this cream compact. It's full of coverage, lasts all day and night, and is oh-so-easy to use with a sponge (or even fingers). Make Up For Ever Ultra HD Invisible Cover Foundation $43 Shop This option was created specifically to be on camera (it's a favorite red carpet among celebrities). It features coated pigments and hyaluronic balls that chubby and cover, but remain invisible, even in HD. The best part? It comes (count 'em) 50 shades and does not require retouching. Smashbox Studio Skin 15 Hour Moisturizing Foundation $36 Shop This foundation promises 24-hour clothing without settling, transferring, or oxidizing. It uses hyaluronic acid and vitamin E to give you radiant, bright, and completely evening-appropriate skin. Highly covered pigments blur any blemishes or discoloration — like an Instagram filter — and ensure that your look is in place all night. Tarte Amazonian Clay Full Coverage Foundation SPF $15-$39 Shop Courtesy of amazon clay blend, this smart foundation adapts to suit your specific skin concerns. It's full of coverage, but amazingly flexible, buildable and perfectly natural. Looking.
